About Osgoode Professional Development

Osgoode Professional Development (OsgoodePD), is part of York University's Osgoode Hall Law School, and is Canada's largest and most dynamic professional development program in Canada. We offer a wide range of Continuing Legal Education courses as well as a Professional Master of Laws degree for working professionals and international students. OsgoodePD embodies the law school's commitment to meeting the educational needs of the broader legal and business community, and is the only program of its kind among Canadian law schools.

OsgoodePD offers the broadest range of programs available in Canada for internationally trained lawyers or law graduates. Our flagship academic programs include a course-based Professional LLM degree with a variety of different specializations. Students are taught by leading academics, top practitioners, judges and policymakers at our downtown executive learning centre, or through distance learning. Our full-time LLM specializations in International Business Law, Canadian Common Law and Tax Law are particularly well-suited for internationally trained students.

About Osgoode's Internationally Trained Lawyers Day

OITLD begins with sessions that will inform internationally trained lawyers and law students on navigating the accreditation, licensing and recruitment processes. Later sessions include facilitated discussions on career building and identifying/capitalizing on unique strengths.

We close the evening with a keynote speaker and a reception that brings together members of the legal and professional community to meet, network and exchange ideas.

Last year's keynote speaker was Hadiya Roderique on the strength of diverse teams and retaining diverse talent.

We attract over 100 workshop participants and reception guests every year.
