Articulating recruitment: are you fishing in the right pond?

Many legal employers are gearing up for a busy articling recruitment season this summer. If you’re hiring this year, you’ll be faced with a large number of applicants for roles in your organization. So, you’ve got quantity…but what about quality? Specifically, are you seeking the quality of applicants that would be most valuable to your business?

From court clerk to counsel: remembering Rajeev Vijan

Rajeev Vijan, who died at the age of 43 in late 2021, was an inspiration to many. He was a committed student and a devoted lawyer who always approached his work in the way Raj did: as a warm and kind-gracious person. We want to inspire others in the legal profession to approach their work in the way Raj did: as a warm and kind-gracious person. Germán Morales Farah: International Business Law

Germán Morales Farah has been pushing his boundaries right from the beginning. Growing up in a small city in Argentina’s Cordoba province, he started English lessons when he was only four years old—his parents wanted him to have the advantage of learning a new language. But it wasn’t long before Germán began to express his interest in law.
